layer by layer
truth by delicate truth something new is revealed i peel it back for you

the foundation of our love will they understand 3000 years from now the reason for our plans how we laughed at midnight how we vogued and walked how we made this runway what is sacred what is lush

my eyes cry out in anguish my head splits out in pain my bones form shapes my guts spill words held by tendons all in place i peel it all back for you tooth by horrible tooth category is: bizarre mask, silhouette, texture structure & character are all key to a successful look can the inner creatures we keep tucked away come out to play when we give in to the sublime

and detach ourselves from the idea of humanity?

how can we become a concept to explore without forgetting to love ourselves?

how do our brains fill the gaps as we're given this information piece by piece?

what new stories are made in the spaces between?

will it inspire you to move through the world a little different, to make what you want to see?

these are all questions
